

Ericka Adler Selected as one of Crain's 2022 Notable Gen X Leaders in Accounting, Consulting and Law

CHICAGO (December 8, 2022) — Roetzel & Andress is pleased to announce Crain's Chicago Business selected shareholder Ericka Adler for inclusion on its 2022 list of Notable Gen X Leaders in Accounting, Consulting and Law. The list honors Chicago-based professionals serving in a senior leadership role that have shown the ability to effect change within their profession and their communities.

A shareholder and leader of the firm's Health Care Group, Adler has nearly 25 years of experience representing individual providers, physician groups, and other health care entities, such as home health care agencies, DME companies, hospices, MRI facilities, and surgery centers. She focuses her practice on regulatory and transactional health care law, in compliance counseling, structuring, and implementing complex joint ventures to comply with state and federal laws and regulations. Ericka handles mergers, sales and acquisitions of healthcare entities and has extensive experience in completing transactions with private equity, hospitals and other third parties.

Adler has demonstrated a commitment to her clients by advocating for education. She started Roetzel HealthLaw HotSpot® in 2019, a podcast and YouTube channel for physicians and health professionals that covers the legal issues and trends that affect the health care industry. Adler was named a "Go-To Thought Leader" in Health Care in 2021 by The National Law Review, and most recently, her podcast was listed among the "20 Best Health & Medical Law Podcasts" by Feedspot.com

Ericka currently serves on the DePaul Health Law Institute advisory board, previously served on the Illinois Association of Healthcare Attorneys board, has taught as an adjunct professor of health law at DePaul and has served as a mentor for younger attorneys.
