

Jeremy Young Selected for Leadership Columbus Class of 2017

Columbus, OH – July 11, 2016 – Roetzel is pleased to announce that attorney Jeremy S. Young has been selected for the Leadership Columbus Class of 2017. All class members will participate in an intensive 10-month leadership training program comprised of self-assessment testing, monthly sessions focusing on community issues and challenges, and a group project designed to increase skill levels and provide solutions to community problems.

Leadership Columbus, one of the top five ranked community leadership programs in the country, provides state of the art education and training for emerging and existing leaders in the Columbus area. Since 1974, Leadership Columbus has been the premier training ground to educate, empower, equip and prepare more than 2,500 individuals to become the current and future trustees in and for the Columbus community. Leadership Columbus graduates have contributed to the quality of life in Central Ohio by their deeds and actions. In addition to completing more than 200 community projects, Leadership Columbus alumni have assumed positions of leadership in government, banking, business, industry, nonprofit sectors, politics, journalism, education, philanthropy, law and neighborhood development. In addition, graduates populate the boards of the arts, health care and innumerable other nonprofit organizations in Central Ohio.

Jeremy is an associate in Roetzel's Columbus office and a member of the firm's Business Litigation group. He focuses his practice on business and commercial litigation, with an emphasis on eminent domain, property-related litigation and appellate law.
