

Patrick Healy Joins Roetzel's Cincinnati Office as Shareholder

CINCINNATI, Ohio (February 14, 2020) — Roetzel & Andress LPA has strengthened its Medical Defense, Product Liability and Transportation Groups with the addition of Patrick B. Healy, who joins the firm as a shareholder in the Cincinnati office.

“Patrick has an accomplished record of achievement,” said Chad Sizemore, Shareholder-in-Charge of the Cincinnati Office. “He will be a valuable asset to this firm as we continue to offer exceptional service to our clients in Cincinnati and across the country.”

For over a decade, Mr. Healy has devoted his practice to the defense of businesses and individuals involved in complex civil litigation, often involving allegations of catastrophic injury. Mr. Healy has experience representing a wide array of entities including: international manufacturing companies, physicians and health care providers, transportation companies, including a nationally recognized ride-sharing platform, and insurance companies.

Mr. Healy earned his law degree from Chase College and graduated from DePauw University, where he was an Economics Management major.

With bar admissions in Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana state courts and the federal district courts in each of those three states, Mr. Healy is well-positioned in Roetzel's Cincinnati office to represent clients throughout the tri-state area.
